Local Jottings

Arthur Waddy, writing to relatives here, says that he is making a rapid recovery from his injuries, caused by shrapnel, and expects to be back in the firing line soon again.

A. F. Trainor, the telephone man connected with trial last Tuesday, has been released on bail. His trial is expected to come up about the 8th of June, and it is thought that C. V. Vanscoy's case will also come up about the same time.

We have received a letter from a local man, referring to the treatment accorded the two prisoners sent from here to Calgary lately for trial. As neither of the two men have been convicted of any offence, it would be illegal for us to publish a letter comparing the degree of enormity of the two alleged offences, while the cases are so judicious. At the same time, we feel that a man who has not been convicted of any offence, but who has only received a preliminary hearing should not be taken from Strathmore to Calgary in legions, unless his conduct is such as to render it imperative.

In regard to the Trainor affair, the "Bassano Mail" says: "The whole affair came as a surprise to Bassano people, for though noted for their propensity toward an argument of any description, he was never considered to harbor any love for our national enemies. His utterances certainly appear to be an unfortunate indiscretion just at this particular time. Trainor's friends are circulating a petition towards securing his release."

Following on our suggestion of last week, a fund is being raised to provide a bandstand in the Park.

The Strathmore Trading Coy. is now giving Scrip coupons with every cash purchase. The idea is a novel one, and affords special opportunities for cash buyers.

Hawick Station on the C.N.R. has had its name changed to Ardennade, and a post office has been opened. Mr. Davis, Nightingale, is the postmaster.

Mr. G. J. B. Lane's auction sale, held on Friday, was very successful, good prices being realized, especially for dairy cattle.

RT. HON. A. J. BALFOUR who is expected to enter the coalition cabinet. He is mentioned as likely to succeed Winston Churchill as First Lord of the Admiralty.

C.P.R. Wins Irrigation Suit

RESULT OF SPECIAL TEST CASE PUT FORWARD BY OBJECTING FARMERS

Great interest was manifested in the special test case brought forward by the farmers who are endeavoring to render the C.P.R. contracts for irrigable land null and void, and which was heard before his Honor Judge Hyndman in the Supreme Court in the first three days of last week.

To the surprise of nearly everybody, including the C.P.R. who had in attendance a large number of witnesses, farmers, employees, and experts, the case was dismissed by Justice Hyndman after the hearing of the evidence, declaring a nonsuit and dismissed the case with costs.

Under a searching cross-examination by Mr. Bigger, K.C., representing the Company, one expert called by the farmers, Mr. McCulloch, had to acknowledge that he had not made a detailed examination of the land in the block, and that he had not access to the Government climate records.

The suit arose out of the contention of a farmer named Babcock, residing near Gleichen, who claimed that land he had purchased from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company as irrigable land was not benefited by irrigation, and appealed to the courts for a rescission of his land contract. The land in question is located in the C.P.R. Irrigation Block east of Calgary, and the object of the suit was to have all reference to irrigable land removed from the contract and the price reduced to that of non-irrigable land, and also to declare void the water agreement whereby the purchaser had agreed to pay an annual water rental of fifty cents an acre.

REASONS FOR THE DECISION

Justice Hyndman, in delivering judgment, went fully into the main issue of the case, that the land sold was unsuitable for irrigation, and the scheme was of no benefit. His Lordship held that a fair trial of the scheme should have been made by experts who would be capable of judging whether irrigation would or would not be a success.

WROTE TESTIMONIAL IN 1910

The fact that water was available, said the judge, can be in no way a detriment, as it is simply an insurance against lack of moisture, and the evidence shows that under irrigation in 1910 the plaintiff secured fourteen bushels to the acre more from the irrigated land than that not irrigated. The evidence showed that the plaintiff had only done a small amount of irrigating in 1907 and 1910, and in that year he wrote to the Company a letter in which he said that the portion he had irrigated gave him 30 bushels wheat to the acre, and the unirrigated portion only six bushels. "I do not see on the facts as disclosed by the evidence, how I can possibly come to the conclusion that irrigation is not a benefit to the land."

REGARDED TREGO AS PREJUDICED

Dealing with the evidence of W. D. Trego, chairman of the Farmers' Combined Irrigation and Publicity Committee, and a leading character in the objections that had been raised against irrigation, the judge said he regarded him as a prejudiced witness who could not possibly lay claim to know that irrigation on this land was a failure, because there was no test made. On his own showing Trego went around among the farmers, urging them not to use water, and he was one of the leaders in the agitation to try and bring about a reduction in the price of these lands, and establish the fact that irrigation in this district was a failure.

Conquest of a German Trench by French Sappers

There was no evidence, said His Lordship, that alkali was due to irrigation any more than to rainfall. The land had been irrigated only twice in eight years, and he must hold plaintiff had not made out his case on this issue.

HELD LAND EIGHT YEARS

Dealing with the phase of the case involving repudiation, His Lordship reviewed the evidence which showed that plaintiff had continued to hold the land and derive profit from it, growing crops year after year and renting it on two years, without offering any payment of interest or capital to the Company after 1910 despite his knowledge of the facts he alleged, and therefore, according to the law, he was barred forever from suing for repudiation of the contract because during all the eight years he held the land he took no steps to repudiate it and if he wished to do this he should have taken action at the time when he found the statement of the agent of the Company to be untrue, but he continued acting as though he elected to affirm the contract.

Judgment was, therefore, given for the defendant with costs, and the counterclaim for the balance of the purchase price allowed.

FURTHER CASES

The irrigation question, will be further aired in the Courts shortly, when cases brought forward by W. D. Trego and Henry Sorensen will be heard.

BUY AN IRRIGATED FARM

FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY
 BECAUSE

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and insures good crops, not occasionally, but EVERY YEAR. Irrigation makes possible the successful culture of alfalfa, the king of feeders, which insures best returns in dairying and mixed farming. Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement, with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community. Irrigation in the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Block is no longer an experiment, the year 1914 having absolutely demonstrated its entire worth. You can buy irrigated land from the Canadian Pacific Railway at prices ranging from $25 to $75 per acre, with twenty years to pay and the privilege of a loan of $3000 for improvements (if per cent interest, superior to any other) at the risk of first or second years and no water rental for first year. Assistance is also given in supplying stock in approved quantities. This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm land on record. Get full particulars from

Big Crowd Going to Banff

Are you going to Banff? Is the commonest question being asked throughout the town and district at the present time and is nine cases out of ten the answer is in the affirmative.

Thursday, June 3, the King's Birthday, is a Dominion Holiday, and Strathmore Town Council has made assurance double by proclaiming it a public holiday.

The attractions of Banff are greater than ever this year. Beside the natural ones of mountain, lake, and river there is the hot springs, which have been greatly enlarged and beautified during the past year. A wild Wild West Show organized by Mr. H. C. McMullen, of Calgary Stampede fame, is also running throughout the season. The Banff Zoo, the children's delight, has been largely added to, and a new recreation park has been provided.

But what's the use of talking Banff is Banff, and there is no place like it on the Continent.

Strathmore Brass Band is hard at work practicing for the trip, and they expect to have at least twelve members for the trip, and lots of new music.

The fare is very low, $2.45 return from Strathmore. This is about the third the regular fare. There will be no deadheads on this trip, and any profit accruing will be used to the improvement of the playground at Strathmore School.

Outside points, such as Banff, Nakka, Nightingale, Carleton Place, and Linton, are showing much interest, and already many tickets have been disposed of there. Those who have not yet secured their tickets should do so now, as there is a possibility that the supply will be exhausted before the date of the excursion.

Further particulars can be obtained from posters.

Town Council

After the smoke and fury of the session trial in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening had passed away, the Town Council met in the same building and discussed comparatively prosaic matters.

Possible as a result of the references to the "grand old flag" during the trial, the Council decided to purchase two new flags for the park and one for the Town Hall, the others having flown so long that they had become tattered.

PUBLIC HOLIDAY JUNE 3

The Council also decided to make Thursday June 3, the date of the Banff Excursion, a public holiday.

The condition of that part of the sidewalk where the ditch supplying the lake in the park runs under the sidewalk was discussed and it was agreed to put it in such shape as to prevent accidents.

A number of accounts were passed.

What are the women of Canada doing about the "Made-in-Canada" movement? As usual, more than meets the eye. There never was a good movement without women in it somewhere. When the women of Canada undertake to put their nation on the campaign that means prosperity to their husbands, and brothers, and the success of that campaign is certain. In this case that peculiar quality of women known as intuition counts for more than all the logic of well-constructed arguments. Women are natural economists. They will sell as instinctive spenders. When they endorse a policy of buying goods made by Canadians for the sake of Canadian homes, they do it as a matter of plain instinct. You don't have to reason to a woman that it's her duty to support her own cause before anybody else's. She takes it for granted.

All it's movement needed to carry it with flying colors to the winning point of national prosperity was the intuitive backing of the intelligent womanhood of Canada. To them it's as obvious as her mother that disaster would befall the nation that engaged in an economic policy that would deprive it of the goods it doesn't stand behind. It's a plain as daylight fact that if the women of Canada don't support their own cause, they won't. It's a plain as daylight fact that if the women of Canada don't support their own cause, they won't. It's a plain as daylight fact that if the women of Canada don't support their own cause, they won't.

What the Liquor Act Means

The appeal which is being made to the farmers of Alberta by the prohibitionists with regard to the Liquor Act is one that is not borne up by the Act. The farmer is asked to vote for the Act because it means prohibition, and because it will benefit him. The Act itself is a weird affair which even a fair-minded prohibitionist will admit—if forced to—is cumbersome and unfair, not conducive to encourage illegitimate traffic. It introduces permits and puts the issuance of these absolutely in the hands of hundreds of men, some reliable doubtless, some unprincipled. It allows any person to have liquor shipped into the province as often as he wishes, for household use. It does not even bar Indians. It opens up the doors and allows any interloper who is a householder to get liquor. It introduces that most despicable system, the volunteer reformer, and devotes one entire clause (Clause 44) to its protection. It opens up towns and districts to liquor choppers where none were before, this being done by the vendor who the government appoints to the vendors to handle liquor wherever it deems suitable. It makes it possible for the government to utilize the liquor business of the province to take care of the needy and workers by giving them permanent salaried jobs.

It further places the public in the position of perpetual suspect of criminals, throwing on the accused in every case the onus of proving himself innocent, not giving him the British fair play system of considering him innocent until proven guilty.

Under the present license law the rural districts are remarkably clear of the liquor traffic. It is only in the towns that liquor can now be obtained. Under the new Act the country especially will be dotted with blind-pigs, smugglers, and the tough element who always come into a prohibition district in order to make quick money which is always in sight for the illicit liquor dealer.

The worst kind of alcoholic is the "bottle drinker," the man who purchases by the bottle and drinks alone, the man who drinks for the love of alcohol, not for conviviality. He will be able to satisfy his craving.

In fact the Act is inoperative except with that class of citizens who takes an occasional drink, the man who spends ten or fifteen or twenty-five cents a day or a week for a friendly drink. He will not go to the trouble to get his liquor shipped in, but the steady drinker, the man who should be protected is going to be able to get all he wants if he can afford to send out and have it expressed in. And the workingman who cannot afford to pay for more than his glass of beer per day will be forced to go to the blind-pigger, the drug store, the unprincipled dentist, druggist, doctor or veterinary surgeon to get a drink. In this case he will not drink beer but will take whiskey.

Every farmer should read the Liquor Act and prove for himself that the above statements are absolutely correct. In spite of additional taxes, of hordes of liquor detectives, of volunteer informers, of all the narrow restrictions of the Liquor Act there will be more drunkenness in Alberta if this Act passes than there has been since the "prohibition" days of the 80's.

Fine Growing Weather

Warm weather has succeeded the heavy rains recorded in last issue, and under the stimulus crops have made rapid progress. Early sown wheat is six inches high and other grains are making proportionate advances. Seeding is almost completed now, with the exception of that intended for green feed.

There is enough moisture in the soil to keep the crop growing for another month without further precipitation, and conditions, in fact, could not be better. Crops are much ahead of their condition at this time last year.

Considerable rain fell on the first three days of this week.

Alterations in Train Service

LOCAL ON AGAIN

Commencing May 30, a new train schedule will come into effect, affecting points between Calgary and Medicine Hat.

Instead of the former train services, with only one train west and one east each day, there will be two trains each way. Train No. 13 will leave here going west at 8:24 a.m. and the other No. 15 will leave here going west at 9:31 a.m.

The local, No. 16 will leave here going east at 8:25 p.m., and No. 14 will also leave here going west at 11:10 p.m. Now 3 and 4, which formerly carried the mail here will go round by the Glenora subdivision.

The new service is a decided improvement on the old one, the only drawback being that mail will be received during the night, and will consequently not be distributed until the morning. It arrangement can be made whereby the westbound local can carry mail, letters could be sent to Calgary by it and answer received the following morning.

DEAL IN STOVES

How One Factory Got an Order—Keeps the Wheels Turning

A statement filed by one of Hamilton's stove manufacturing concerns, discloses in a striking way the effect of the "Made-in-Canada" campaign which has been running for the last few months. Some time ago a factory was closed for lack of orders. Today it is running four days per week and all three are prospects that it may run six days a week before long.

"We used to find pretty strong competition from a certain Michigan stove concern," said the manager of the factory referred to, "and largely because there were so many American settlers in the West who had always known the Michigan stove on the other side. We could it very difficult to get the settlers to stock our line, although our prices were a shade lower than those of the American concern."

"One of our best travellers was on his way back from the West at the time. He met him at an informal conference of retail hardware men in Regina, and found them discussing ways and means of keeping their business open. He wired us for permission to make them a proposition. He suggested that as an experiment was reached whereby these men agreed to handle only "Made-in-Canada" stoves. Our Michigan competitors in the East had to get together and agree to carry these few orders over to the West. The result has been splendid. Banks, retailers and our men have co-operated. As a result the "Made-in-Canada" line we are able to keep our men employed and our machinery from rusting."

There is considerable talk lately regarding the C.P.R. putting on foreigners on this section of this line in place of English speaking employees with homes and families in Strathmore. We do not know the statements made are correct, but there would seem to be some basis for them, and with so many English present time the Company ought to see them placed first before employing men of alien nationality. If anyone should subsidize on charity

 at the present time, it should not be a Britisher.

STOCK BYLAW HELD OVER

Two petitions were received asking that the proposed by-law for the restraining of animals running at large be submitted to a vote of the ratepayers.

The Council decided to defer action on this bylaw till next meeting, in order to get the people's minds settled on the question. It appears that some of the people who signed the petition asking for this bylaw have also signed against bringing it into effect, and this implied that public opinion had not crystallized yet on the subject and a month's delay would have a beneficial effect.

A letter was read from Strathmore
 U.F.A. asking the council to re-
